PALMER AND WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

As an illustration of the politics of Woman Suffrage, the Uniontown Record's interesting explanation of Congressman Carr's position on this question is much to the point. The Record says:

"The defeat of the Woman Suffrage resolution in the House of Representatives was not unexpected. The sentiment in favor of giving women with the ballot is apparent only in spots. In the South, old ideas prevail generally. There were few Congressmen that there were called upon to vote in favor of the innovation.

Congressman Carr voted for the measure, yet a. Mitchell Palmer found a little sympathy with the Suffrage cause. In Uniontown, that he feared to deliver his Woman Suffrage address in this city in October as he had planned.

The story of that quick change is worth telling. Mr. Palmer is a candidate for United States Senator against Senator Patterson, had been indicted his opponent of sundry high crimes and misdemeanors and he had a long list of late business opposition to Woman Suffrage before a Uniontown audience. As was explained, he was a little sympathetic with the cause, but he was not a Uniontown man.

ought to make it plain that this country is for peace and liberty. If the foreigners must fight, let them take the next boat to Europe, where fighting is just now the chief end of man.

The Turks are seizing the opportunity to massacre a few more Christians.

The Italian horror grows. The whole country seems to have been shaken in the grip of Italian forces. The next American relief ship will have to be sent there.

The building of bathhouses promises to become perfunctory in this country. Our attention is being invited to agencies and bathhouses and an usual Yankee ingenuity promises to outstrip all other invention.

THE DOUBLE CROSS

By GEORGE FITCH,
 Author of "At Good Old Seward."

In these tumultuous days we hear much about the iron cross, the Victoria cross, the Cross of the Legion of Honor, the Cross of St. Mike and other foreign crosses. They are given to soldiers who have been unusually brave in the field.

The giving of crosses has always been a mark of honor in the older countries. A European soldier who is in the line in a particularly brave way is given a cross in order to win one of those small pieces of metal worth $57 per gross, ribbons included.

We do not use the cross in military proceedings in this country, but the double cross is something a man doesn't want to get.

The double cross is a deception, generally, in times of peace. It is a lie upon a lie by the man who designed it just before the said designer goes away to a safe place.

Union Supply Attractions

The Union Supply Company stores always have some special bargain sale going on; it is a continuation the whole year 'round, but just now we are offering something very special in Shoe Bargains. Our stocks are heavy; we are overloaded, and to move them out we are reducing prices. The lines are complete in every respect—Men's, Women's and Children's Footwear. We have for women and misses the very newest styles in Dress Shoes; we have for the elderly women comfortable, low heel, broad lasts; complete lines of men's dress and working shoes; the very best knock-about School Shoes for girls and boys that the market produces. Now, the reductions are actual, bona fide; it is not catch-trap advertisement; it is a real reduction sale. We are hardly in mid-winter yet; there is going to be much weather that you will need heavy shoes before springtime, and you should take advantage of these reductions. We are not going to specify prices further than to say that many of our shoes are reduced Twenty-Five per cent; other lines as high as Fifty per cent.

Investigate yourself—call and see the lines.

Bunching the Advertising Hits

The team that led the National League in batting—did not win the pennant.

It did not bat at the right time or in the right direction.

There is a lesson in this for every national manufacturer.

It is not a question of how much advertising ammunition you fire as it is how you make your shots count.

Newspaper advertising properly placed always scores.

The hits can be bunched at the right time. Results are certain.

Manufacturers interested in getting better results for their advertising are invited to communicate with the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, 306 World Building, New York.

NOTED DOCTORS WELCOMED HERE

New Connellsville Institute Is Crowded With Patients All Day.

MANY OUT OF TOWN VISITORS

Specialists Busy Every Moment and Many Patients Could Not Be Seen
Owing to Constant Crowds in Institute.

A most royal reception was extended to the noted doctors by the people of Connellsville and vicinity upon the occasion of the opening of their new medical institute on the second floor of the Citizens National Bank Building at the corner of Fifth and Apple streets.

All day long the waiting rooms were crowded with patients awaiting their turn for a free consultation with these renowned specialists. So great was the rush of patients that the specialists who are in charge of the institute were kept busy all morning, afternoon and evening long past their regular office hours, while a long line of patients waited for a consultation from 9 a. m. to 12 noon, from 12 noon to 6 p. m., and from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 12 noon.

Many patients from out of town were in the waiting rooms. Some were from Greensburg, while others came from Meadville.

Besides many patients, there were also a number of business men and prominent citizens who called to pay their respects to the noted doctors and wish them well.

The offer of free examination, free consultation and free treatment at the bare cost of the medicine and its distribution is extended all who call before January 31. After that date full consulting fees will be charged.

Any one suffering from any nervous or blood disease or other chronic ailment or disease cannot do better than to call upon these expert medical specialists. You will find them perfectly honest and upright in all their dealings. If they cannot cure you they will frankly tell you so, for it is their invariable rule to refuse to accept incurable cases.

While the noted doctors will not accept any case they deem to be incurable, yet no one should despair because other doctors have failed to cure or even relieve them. It must be remembered that their vast experience and scientific use of their wonderful system of medicine enabled them to cure many cases that have been pronounced hopeless by old methods.

The noted doctors solicit difficult and desperate cases. They want the failures of other doctors to come to them at once. This will enable them to show the people of Connellsville what their system of medicine will do and quickly enable them to gain a reputation here as they have in the other cities where their other institutes are already established. Examination and consultation are free and treatment is free, except for the cost of the medicine and its distribution.—Adv.

COURAGE IN WAR

What War Teaches—Well as Best.

Courage in war or business is born of good pure blood. Pure blood is the greatest blessing mankind can have. Millions of people need this power of vegetable purity. This will cure stomach, liver and bowels in the condition that clears the skin of pimples, rash, blotches and eczema; the cure cures the blood and restores the system to health and vigor. It is the world's greatest blood purifier. It enters the blood, dissolves the impure deposits and carries them out as it does all impurities through the liver, bowels, kidneys and skin.

If you have indigestion, sluggish liver, backache over the kidneys, nose or other catarrh, instead of nerves or unsightly skin, get Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery today and start at once to restore your blood. It will kill the kind that puts energy and vitality into you and brings back youth and vigorous action.

A GREAT BOOK EVERY WOMAN SHOULD HAVE.

If you will pay the mailing charges, Dr. Pierce will send you his cloth bound book of over 1,000 pages newly revised with color plates and illustrations.

Everyone should read and have it in case of accident or sickness in the home.

Treats of so many subjects in such an interesting manner that knowledge of the human body is quickly and easily attained by all who read the book.

Send 20 cents in stamps for mailing charges to Dr. Pierce, Medical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and enclose this notice.—Adv.

For a Deep Seated Cold.

It is in cases of deep seated cold that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is most appreciated. It relieves the lungs and makes breathing easier. Besides the touchy lungs and makes it easier to expectorate, it allays the cough and soothes the throat. It also soothes the inflamed surface without disturbing the stomach as do internal medicines.

A cheap and very convenient vapor treatment is a good application of Vick's "Vapo-Rub" Croup and Pneumonia Salve over the throat and chest, covered with a warm flannel cloth. The body heat releases vapors of Thymol, Eucalyptol, Menthol, Camphor, and Pine.

It is in cases of deep seated cold that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is most appreciated. It relieves the lungs and makes breathing easier. Besides the touchy lungs and makes it easier to expectorate, it allays the cough and soothes the throat. It also soothes the inflamed surface without disturbing the stomach as do internal medicines.

A cheap and very convenient vapor treatment is a good application of Vick's "Vapo-Rub" Croup and Pneumonia Salve over the throat and chest, covered with a warm flannel cloth. The body heat releases vapors of Thymol, Eucalyptol, Menthol, Camphor, and Pine.

SCOTSDALE

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, Jan. 15.—The burial of Georgeanna, wife of Lester George, of Beaver Falls, yesterday afternoon in the Scottdale cemetery, made 2001 interments in these grounds. In St. John the Baptist's Roman Catholic cemetery there were 2,237 interments.

The burial of Georgeanna, an infant on January 5. A part of the Scottdale cemetery is over 115 years old. It is lot No. 1, Section one, laid out by Moses Stewart, and William Smith, on June 20, 1799, on the death of Mr. Stewart's father, John Smith, in his 55th year. The stone on the grave of Georgeanna was placed by her father, John Smith, in 1857. Mrs. Stewart, a daughter of Abraham Newcomer, of Owensville, whose body was brought from the Newcomer family burying ground.

The first original interment was that of the body of an infant daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Frey, on June 11, 1857.

LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE IF SICK, CROSS, FEVERISH

When Constipated or Bilious Give "California Syrup of Figs."

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When, however, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad, has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs." and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently move out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative"; they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a 60-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Adv.

"Don't be silly. If you return to your chair, if you no longer walk with me, they'll find a thousand things to talk about. Since I do not care, why should you?"

"Can't I make it clear to you?" desperately.

"I see with reasonable eyes, if that is what you mean. The people I know, mine own people, understand Elsa Chetwood."

So her name was Elsa? He repeated it over and over in his mind.

She continued her expedition. "There are but few, gently born. They are generous and broadminded. They could not be like our people otherwise. They are all I care about. I shall meddle with I would the plague. I refuse to permit it to touch me, either with words or with deeds. The good opinion of those I love is dear to me; as for the rest of the world!" She snapped her fingers to illustrate how little she cared.

"I am a man under a cloud, to be avoided."

"Perhaps that cloud has a silver lining," with a gentle smile. "I do not believe you did anything wrong, promedately. All of us, one time or another, surrender to wild impulses. Perhaps in the future there awaits for me such a moment. I cannot recollect the name of Warrington in a cause celebre," thoughtfully.

He could only gaze at her dumbly. "My name is not Warrington," finding his voice. "In heaven, what would happen when she found out what his name was? But my first name is Paul."

"Paul. I have had my suspicions that your name was not Warrington. But tell me nothing more. What good would it do? I did not read that man's letter. I merely noted your name and his. You doubtless know him somewhere in the past."

"Might there not be danger in your kindness to me?"

"In what way?"

"A man under a cloud is often reckless and desperate. There is always an invisible demon calling out to him. What's the use of being good? You are the first woman of your station who has treated me as a human being; I do not say as an equal. It's a heady wine for a stubborn man. Don't you realize that you are a beautiful woman?"

She looked up into his eyes quickly, but she saw nothing there indicating battery, only a milder gravity.

"I should be silly to deny it. I know that had I been a tramp, the colored would not have snubbed me. I wonder why it is that in life beauty in a woman is always looked upon with suspicion?"

"Envy provokes that."

She resumed her lecture on against the rail again. "After Singapore it is probable that we shall not meet again. I admit, in my world, I could not walk upon this free and easy ground. I should have to ask about your antecedents, what you have done, all about you, in fact. Then, we should sit in judgment."

"And condemn me, off-hand. That would be perfectly right."

"But I might be one of the dissenting judges."

"That is because you are one woman in a thousand."

"No! I simply have a mind of my own, and often prefer to be guided by it. I am not a sheep."

Silence. The lap of the water, the long slow rise and fall, and the darting flying fish apparently claimed their attention.

But Warrington saw nothing save the danger, the danger to himself and to her. At any moment he might find his arms around her, without his having the power to resist. She called to him as nothing in the world had called before. But she trusted him, and because of this she resolutely throttled the recurring desire. She was right. He had seemed what she had termed as woman's instinct. She had read him with a degree of accuracy. In the eyes of God he was a good man, a dependable man; but he was not impressively good. He was human enough to want her, human enough to appreciate the danger in which she stood of him.

"Tell me about the man who looks like me." His gaze roved out to sea, to the white islands of vapor lowing in the east. "In what respect does he resemble me?"

"His hair is yellow, his eyes are blue, and he smiles the same way you do."

He felt the lump rise and swell in his throat.

"If you stood before a mirror you would see him. But there the resemblance ends."

"Is he a man who does things?" a note of strained curiosity in his voice. Ten years!

"In what way do you mean?"

"Does he work in the world, does he invent, build, finance?"

Mayhap her eyes deceived her, but the tan on his face seemed less brown than yellow.

"No! Mr. Ellison is a collector of paintings, of rugs, of rare books and china. He's a bit detached, as dreamers usually are. He has written a book of exquisite verses. . . . You are smiling," she broke off suddenly, her eyes filling with cold lights.

"A thousand pardons! The thought was going through my head how unlike we are indeed. I can hardly tell one monster from another, all old books look alike to me, and the same with china. I know something about rugs; but I couldn't write a fugue if it was to save me from hanging."

"Do you invent, build, finance?" A bit of a girl had opened up between them. Elsa might not be prepared to marry Arthur, but she certainly would not tolerate a covert sneer in regard to his accomplishments.

Quietly and with dignity he answered: "I have built bridges in my time over which trains are passing at this moment. I have fought torments, and floods, and hurricanes, and myself. I have done a man's work. I had a future, they said. But here I am, a subject of your pity."

She instantly relented. "But you are young. You can begin again."

"Not in the same way you mean."

"And yet, you tell me you are going back home."

"Like a thief in the night," bitterly.

CHAPTER XI.

The Blue Feather.

Elsa toyed with her emeralds, apparently searching for some flaw. Like a thief in the night was a phrase that rang unpleasantly in her ears. Her remarkable interest in the man was neither to be denied nor ignored.

To receive the cut direct from a man whose pomposity and mental density had excited her wit and amusement, surprised her even if it did not hurt. It had rudely awakened her to the fact that her independence might be leading her into a labyrinth.

Something new had been born in her. All her life she had gone about calmly and slowly, her head in the clouds, her feet on mountain tops. She had never done anything to arouse discussion in other women. Perhaps such a situation had never confronted her until lately. She had always looked forth upon life through the lenses of mild cynicism. So long as she was rich she might, with impunity, be as indifferent as she pleased. Her money would plead forgiveness and toleration. Elsa shrugged. But she could have no doubts. She could have no doubts. To have come all this way to solve a riddle, only to find a second more confusing than the first!

Like a thief in the night. She did not care to know what he had done, not half so much as to learn what he had been. Feculations of some order; of this she was reasonably sure. So why seek for details, when those might be soord?

Singapore would see the end, and she would become her normal self again.

She clasped the necklace around her lovely throat. She was dressing for dinner, really dressing. An impish mood filled her with the irrepressible desire to show in all her splendor to-night. Covertly she would watch the eyes of mediocrity widen. Hitherto they had seen her in the simple white of travel. Tonight they should behold the woman who had been notable among the beauties in Paris, Vienna, Rome, London; who had not married a duke simply because his title could not have added to the security of her position, socially or financially.

Into the little mirror above the wash stand she peered, with smiling and approving eyes. Never had she looked better. There was unusual color in her cheeks and the clarity of her eyes spoke illuminatingly of superb health.

The fun on her face was not made noticeable in contrast by her shoulders and arms, old ivory in tint and as smooth and glossy as ancient Carrara.

"You lovely creature!" murmured Martha, touching an arm with her lips. "You are foolish to dress like this."

She finished the hooking of Elsa's waist.

"And why?"

"In the first place there's nobody worth the trouble; and nobody but a duchess or a . . ."

Martha paused embarrassedly.

"Or a what? An improper person?" Elsa laughed. "My dear Martha, your comparisons are faulty. I know but two duchesses in this wide world who are not dowdies, and one of them is an American. An improper person is generally the most proper, outside her peculiar environments. Can't you suggest something else?"

Martha searched but found no suitable reply. She believed that she saw more clearly into the future than Elsa. Someone would talk, and in that strange, inscrutable fashion scandal has of reaching the ends of the earth, the story would eventually arrive home; and there, for all the professions of friendship, it would find admittance. No door is latched when scandal knocks. Martha readily appreciated that it was all harmless, to be expressed by a single word, whim. But Martha herself never acted upon impulse; she first questioned what the world would say. So ran the sheep.

For years Martha had discharged her duties, if mechanically yet with a sense of pleasure and serenity. At this moment she was as one pushed unexpectedly to the brink of a precipice, over which the slightest misstep would topple her. The world was out of joint.

"I wish we had gone to Italy," she remarked finally.

"It would not have served my purpose in the least. I should have been dancing and playing bridge and going to operas. I should have had no time for thinking."

"Thinking!" Martha elevated her brows with an air that implied that she greatly doubted this statement.

"Yes, thinking. It is not necessary that I should mope and shut myself up in a cell, Martha thinks. I have finally come to the end of my doubts, if that will gratify you. From now on you may rely upon one thing, to a certainty."

Martha hesitated to put the question.

"I am not going to marry Arthur. He is charming, graceful, accomplished; but I want a man. I should not be happy with him. I can twist him too easily around my finger. I admit that he exercises over me a certain indolent fascination; but when he is out of sight it amounts to the sum of all this doddering and doubting. It is probable that I shall make an admirable old maid. Wisdom has its disadvantages. I might be very happy with Arthur, were I not so wise." She smiled again at the reflection in the mirror. "Now, let us go and astonish the natives."

There was a mild flutter of eyelids as she sat down beside Warrington and began to chatter to him in Italian. He made a brave show of following her, but became hopelessly lost after a few minutes. Elsa spoke fluently; twelve years had elapsed since his last visit to Italy. He admitted his confusion, and thereafter it was only occasionally that she brought the tongue into the conversation. This diversion, which she employed mainly to annoy her neighbors, was, in truth, the very worst thing she could have done. They no longer conjectured; they assumed.

Warrington was too strongly dazzled by her beauty tonight to be mentally keen or to be observing as was his habit. He never spoke to his neighbor; he had eyes for none but Elsa, under whose spell he knew that he would remain while he lived. He was nothing to her; he readily understood. She was restless and lonely, and he amused her. So he it. He believed that there could not be an unhappier, more unfortunate man than himself. To have been betrayed by the one he had loved, second to but one, and to have this knowledge thrust upon him after all these years, was an evil enough; but the nadir of his misfortunes had been reached by the appearance of this unreadable young woman.

"You are not listening to a word I am saying!"

"I beg your pardon! But I warned you that my father was rusty." He pulled himself together.

"But I have been rattling away in English!"

"Not at all complimentary to me."

"It is because I am very unhappy; it is because Tanti and I are brothers."

"I wish I could make you forget."

"On the contrary, the sight of you makes memory all the keener."

He had never spoken like that before. It rather subdued her, made her regret that she had surrendered to a vanity that was without aim or direction. Farthest from her thought was conquest of the man. She did not wish to hurt him. She was not a coquette.

After dinner he did not suggest the usual promenade. Instead, he excused himself and went below.

They arrived at Peking early Monday morning. Elsa decided that Warrington should take her and Martha on a personally conducted tour of the pretty town. As they left for shore he produced a small beautiful blue feather; he gave it to Elsa with the compliments of Rajah; and she stuck it in the pugose of her helmet.

"This is not from the dove of peace," "It is a schemer, rather," he laughed. "I wish I had the ability to get as furious as that bird. It might do me a world of good."

"And how long is it since you were here?"

"Four years," he answered without enthusiasm. He would not have come ashore at all but for the fact that Elsa had ordered the expedition.

There was no inclination to explore the shores; so they hired a launch and rode about town, climbed up to the quaint temple in the hills, and made a tour of the botanical gardens.

SICK CHILDREN LOVE CASCARETS FOR THE BOWELS

Give "Candy Cathartic" for a Bad Cold, Sour Stomach, Constipation.

Get a 10-cent box now.

Most of the ills of childhood are caused by a sour, disordered stomach, sluggish liver and constipated bowels. They catch cold easily, become cross, listless, irritable, feverish, restless, tongue coated, don't eat or sleep well and need a gentle cleansing of the bowels—but don't try to force a nauseating dose of oil into the little one's already sick stomach—it is cruel, needless and old-fashioned.

Any child will gladly take Cascarets Candy Cathartic which is gentle—never grips or produces the slightest uneasiness—though it cleanses the little one's system, sweetens the stomach and puts the liver and bowels in a pure, healthy condition.

Full directions for children and grownups in each package.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this gentle, thorough laxative which costs only 10 cents a box at any drug store.—ADV.

A MERRILL EFFORT ACHIEVED WITH WINGS.

A new straw hat, the Palm Beach wear, shows the elaborate arrangement of wing trimming. Two white gull wing scarfs folded around the crown, then upward, in a peaked, mermaid effect. A band of blue chamois applique trimming holds the wings in position at the base and the white straw hat is faced with blue straw.

Teakwood.

The fact that teakwood is coarse grained, greasy to the touch and possesses an offensive odor kept it in disrepute with English shipbuilders until 1867, when British shipbuilding and railway interests began to recognize the value of Indian teak. During the next seven years all the shipbuilding countries in the world joined in an ever increasing demand for this timber until its prices were forced up to a figure much beyond their normal rates. It has practically become the staple of the local wood industry for the greater part of the entire Indian continent. Teak is being freely planted in the important civil stations all over India, even as far north as Saharanpur, Dehra Dun and Lahore—Argonaut.

WOMAN IN BAD CONDITION

Restored To Health by Lydia
E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Montpelier, Vt.—"I was very great faith in your remedies. I was very irregular and was tired and sleepy all the time, would have cold chills, and my hands and feet would blot.
